The following are the questions presented to the Shaykh with the corresponding minute marker from the audio:

1. Aḥsanallāhu ilyākum: What is your advice for the youth in times of Fitnah, especially the youth who are young and relatively new to Salafiyyah? [00:01:04]
2. A Salafī brother have relatives that are Shī’a and after a number of years he was making da’wah to them and one of them became a Sunnī, or at least pretended to be a Sunnī and got close to the Salafī brother so much so that he married him to one of his daughters. After some time, and there may be some kids involved between the two of them now, the person who became Sunnī says that he is now Shi’ī. Socially, he treats the Salafī brother well and there is nothing wrong between them except the fact that he is still insisting on being a Shī’a now. So the Salafī brother is asking: What shall I do yā Shaykh? [00:13:00]
3. What is the best way of warning the general masses about the du’āt al-fitan. Those who are well known to the general people but are callers to fitan? [00:19:45]

4. Is it allowed for women to give da'wah over the internet? And is it permissible for a woman to correct men on the internet? [00:38:00]
5. I have a deficiency in my character where I sometimes don't control my anger. I get angry and raise my voice and sometimes use despicable speech. I advised my wife of this before I married her and she said she could deal with it but she can't and it leads to her arguing in front of my children. So to prevent this from happening I don't speak when I'm provoked and my wife insist on pushing me to situations that are a fitnah by getting in my face and stopping me from leaving the house, and even calling each other despicable names I try to leave the house until I calm down but she stands in my way daring me to move her from my path and this is a great fitnah for me. Please advise us both. [00:42:27]
